RAIN BARREL CRITERIA

Rain barrels do not require prior approval from the Architectural Review Board (ARB), but those that do not comply with the below criteria will be cited as architectural violations. Please note that homeowners are solely responsible for ensuring rain barrels are monitored with regards to health and safety.

- Rain barrels may be located in the front, side, or rear of homes, and there are no restrictions regarding which housing types are allowed to have rain barrels installed.
- Rain barrels must be a neutral, earth-toned color such as brown, dark green, or black. White rain barrels are not permitted.
